18. 다음 글의 내용을 한 문장으로 요약하고자 한다. 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?

Excellence in performing a complex task requires a critical minimum level of practice. In fact, some researchers studying expertise have settled on the magic number of hours for true expertise: 10,000 hours. “The emerging picture from such studies is that 10,000 hours of practice is associated with being a world-class expert in anything,” writes a researcher, Daniel Levitin. “In study after study of composers, basketball players, fiction writers, ice skaters, and concert pianists, this number comes up again and again.” Of course, this doesn’t address why some people get more out of their practice sessions than others do. But no one has yet found a case in which true world-class expertise was accomplished in less time.

It takes at least 10,000 hours for people to _____.

- ① repair their broken relationships
- ② get promoted in a company
- ③ realize their weaknesses
- ④ forget bad memories
- ⑤ achieve true mastery

19. 다음 글의 빈칸에 가장 알맞은 것은?

It is easy to assume that when a child learns about the physical world he or she is learning objective facts. But this is not so: you and I, for example, ‘know’ that the world is sort of round, whereas our remote ancestors believed it to be flat. But our ‘knowledge’ is based on word of mouth as much as that of our ancestors: _____. Few of us have checked it out for ourselves, or would have the slightest idea how to do so. A very great deal of what we understand about the world is socially constructed and passed to us by our culture.

- ① Someone told us
- ② Nature reveals itself
- ③ Our ancestors knew more
- ④ Nobody listened to the others
- ⑤ Our knowledge is not socially shared

A core business belief is that people are manageable. This is a comfort to managers. It implies that to get things done, all you have to do is tell people to do them. However, the real world does not work that way. To get the best performance from workers, managers must inspire them rather than command them. Antoine de Saint-Exupery put it nicely: "If you want to build a boat, do not instruct the men to saw wood, stitch the sails, prepare the tools, and organize the work, but make them long for setting sail and travel to distant lands."

- ① 직원에게 정확한 업무 지시를 하는 것이 경영의 핵심이다.
- ② 관리자는 직원의 자발적 업무 의지를 이끌어 내야 한다.
- ③ 관리자의 다양한 경험이 회사 경영에 도움이 된다.
- ④ 최신 장비를 갖추는 것이 작업의 효율을 높인다.
- ⑤ 관리자는 모든 직원을 공평하게 대해야 한다.

21. 다음 글이 시사하는 바로 가장 알맞은 것은?

My eight-year-old daughter, Jenny, was recently given a school assignment to write about a hero. When I asked her who she had picked, I was imagining people like Abraham Lincoln or Helen Keller. But Jenny answered that her hero was her friend, Laura, from across the street. At first I was disappointed. I thought that if her hero was only her friend, she had failed to appreciate the contributions that real heroes made to the world. I thought I had better go out and buy some books about famous people. But, then I thought about my heroes, and realized that they are not famous, either. In fact, people I admire most are those who touch me personally like my grandfather who loved people and made all of his grandchildren laugh all the time.

Recently I discovered I had to learn an important skill all over again. Last week I kept looking at my textbook with a highlighter in my hand, trying to find the motivation to keep going. As I read, I realized that the pages were covered with yellow marks, but I could not recall a word. There seemed to be too much information. I finally asked my professor how to read this text. She told me to take my time, pay attention to the organization of each chapter, then figure out what points the authors were trying to make. If I did not understand something, she said I should take notes and ask for clarification in class. Recent research into groups has focused on how group size affects group decision making. Generally, groups strive to reach consensus; they would like all their decisions to be ① agreeable to every member. As the size of the group grows, consensus requires lengthy and time-consuming interaction so that everybody's ② objections can be clearly understood and incorporated. Thus, as groups grow in size, they often ③ reject the more convenient policy of majority rule. This policy results in ④ quicker decisions but often at the expense of individual satisfaction. It therefore ⑤ reduces the unity of the group.

Several studies have shown that remaining angry and constantly re-living a painful incident are physically and emotionally stressful, whereas forgiveness is healing to the body, mind, and spirit. Over the past decade, Robert Enright has investigated the nature of forgiveness. He and other researchers have found that those who forgive someone who has hurt them seem to get significant mental health benefits. And according to studies of long-married couples, the act of forgiving appears to be one of the basic processes that keeps personal relationships functioning. Research also shows that forgiveness can be liberating. Carrying around a desire for revenge or a need to avoid someone is not healthy. Hatred and aggression are linked to a host of health problems.

You often hear people say, "It's all in my genes." If their parents have high blood pressure, many people assume they have inherited the likelihood that they might do the same. Yes, our genes do play a huge part in life and how well we age, but if our genes stay healthy, then our bodies stay healthy. If you live a healthy lifestyle, you can change which genes are expressed. In other words, if your parents and grandparents suffered from heart disease, you may well have a pre-disposition for heart problems at some point. But if you live a different lifestyle and eat healthier foods, you can change the chemistry within the body, and influence your genes to work in your favor. Genes are alterable, and they adjust to our environment and state of mind.

When I taught English at school, I usually asked students to use a dictionary whenever they found unknown words. My sister was the first person who disagreed with my teaching method.

(B) She has a son and his English teacher had the class read The Deerslayer and had students look up and memorize every big word. "How terrible! Why should children understand everything they read?" my sister complained.

(C) Still, I argued, "Without using dictionaries, how could they learn words?" My sister said, "Don't be silly! When you were little, did you look up words in a dictionary?" She was right. Then I realized we learned words by meeting them again and again, in different contexts.

W: Okay, thanks. And how long does it take from here to the ferry terminal on foot? Our day cruise starts there tomorrow.

M: Well, it takes about 40 minutes. It's a bit far to walk.

W: Are there any buses going there?

M: Yes, but not many. People usually take a taxi.

W: Then can you call one for us in the morning?

M: Sure, at what time?

W: Well, 7:00 a.m. would be good.

M: Okay, I'll call the company. Just come to the front desk before then.

W: Thanks! We will.

M: Hello, this message is for Helen Kim. This is Kyle Smith from J&J Company. I'm afraid that we have to reschedule your Friday interview with Mr. Jackson. Something has happened at one of our overseas branches, and Mr. Jackson will be leaving tomorrow to take care of it. He's very sorry about this last minute cancelation and wants to set up a new date to meet with you if you're still interested. Please call me back so that we can reschedule your interview. Thank you.

W: Your seat is in Section D. This is section B.

M: Oh, sorry. My mistake.

W: Don't worry. Let me show you to your seat.

M: Thank you. How much time do we have before the show?

W: About ten minutes, sir.

M: Good! I have time to go to the lobby and buy a bottle of water.

W: Don't forget to keep your ticket with you. We need to check your ticket again when you come back in.

M: Right. Thank you.

M: Well, actually, I've decided to go to Longreach.

W: Really? I thought you liked Grandhill's academic atmosphere.

M: I did, but I have to consider what I'll be doing after graduating.

W: True. I know you're very interested in car design.

M: Right. Lots of successful car designers graduated from Longreach. That makes me want to go there.

W: I see. Will you get a scholarship?

M: No, but that's okay. I'll be doing what I want to do.

W: Sure. I bet you'll be a great car designer.

【9번】 대화를 듣고, 두 사람이 구입하기로 결정한 세탁기를 고르시오.

M: Glad to hear we're getting a new one. Ours is getting a bit noisy.

W: What about these drum washers? These are expensive but very convenient to use.

M: You mean the ones with round windows in them? Fine with me. How big?

W: Our 13 kilogram washer is too small for big loads. How about the 17 kilogram one?

M: Okay. The darker-colored one over there looks good.

W: But don't you think the lighter-colored one looks better?

M: Okay, up to you. You have better taste anyway.

W: Good. Let's get that one.

W: I prefer Woodwork. I'd enjoy making a bookshelf or a chair myself.

M: Sounds good. But I've never done it before, so I'd need to take a beginner course.

W: I think I would need a beginner course, too.

M: Why don't we take one on Monday and Wednesday?

W: I can't! I have a book club meeting every Wednesday at 3:00 p.m.

M: Good idea. How many will you order?

W: I'm thinking 100 cups.

M: Will that be enough? I think you'll need 150. Trust me.

W: 150? Isn't that too many? For my first bakery in Oakhill, I ordered 80, and it was enough.

M: That was a small village compared to this town.

W: That's why I added 20 more than before.

M: What if more people show up? They'll be disappointed if they don't get one.

W: Yeah, you're right. I'll take your suggestion.
