Suddenly, Descartes had an excellent idea, which was to draw lines on the ceiling. He took a piece of charcoal from the fire. Then he climbed up on a chair and first drew lines on the ceiling from left to right. Next he drew lines from top to bottom. Then he numbered the lines one by one. After that, he got back into bed.

Descartes watched the fly on the ceiling. It landed on one place. He checked the spot. It was ① the two lines met: the second one from the left and the fifth one from the bottom. He wrote down (2, 5). The fly flew and landed again. He checked the two crossing lines again and wrote down (6, 4). In this way, he kept recording ② the fly landed each time.
